1. What has been your movie or series watching (or binge watching) recently?
2. In his book Knowing God, J. I. Packer admits that reading and understanding the Bible can leave us confused. He says, “the link to understanding [Scripture] is God himself.” Do you agree with Packer? Why or why not?
3. Here is a list of the topics we will be covering in the new sermon series: Know God: Tough Questions. Real Answers. Which topics intrigue or interest you the most? Why?
  - Can I Understand God?
  - Three Gods or One?
  - Does God Need Me?
  - Does God Change His Mind?
  - Does God Get Angry?
  - Does God Really Work All Things Out for Good?
  - Can I Hide from God?
  - Can I really have a personal relationship with God?
4. Read Acts 17:16-34. From this passage, we know that Paul spent time learning the culture of Athens. How can believers stay biblically grounded and culturally astute in 2020?
5. In Acts 17, we also see that Paul addressed Epicurean and Stoic philosophers in Athens. How does Paul share the truth with these people trying to make sense of life apart from God? What can we learn from this discussion that applies to talking to people about Jesus in 2020?
